SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

With the presentation of this report this Board ends its seventh year. It has "fulfilled its week." This it does with the same officers and with a majority of the same members with whom its work began. Only two of its members have been removed by death; one of these, Rev. Dr. John F. Kendall, of La Porte, Indiana, having died within the year just During his brief relation to the Board he had shown such punctual and intelligent interest in its work that the loss of his counsels is as much regretted as of most welcome companionship. In other particulars this last year has added much to the evidence of that divine favor which the Board has enjoyed from the beginning. Indeed, so notable is the addition which it has made to the solidity and promise of this new work, that it may fairly be considered to have completed the first stage of its history. This report, therefore, may very properly make some record of the chief features of this advance, and of the point which it has reached.

I. REVIEW.

1. Principles.

The principles of the Board's work were plainly announced in its organization. It was to be the agent of the Church in planting and establishing her truly necessary schools of Christian learning in those right places where they could not be expected to be so established by other agencies. Its bare creation, therefore, included such declarations as these: That a certain distribution of schools of higher Christian learning is indispensable to the Church's welfare and to her dutiful service of her Master; that much of that needful distribution has been arranged for in the past and is likely to go on in the future by agencies, personal or local, that do not require any organized oversight or aid from a Church Board; but that since a great part of such needful distribution cannot be effectively made except by help of the Church at large, it is proper that such help be applied under the judgment of a Board, controlled by the General Assembly, and representing, as nearly as possible, the prudence of the whole Church. Such a definition of the Board's work would have defined, in effect, the field in which it was to be done, even if the Assembly had not carefully described it. In the nature of the case it would lie beyond the limits of the old and able presbyteries and synods. This is now so plain that it is a matter of wonder that the Board was persuaded, even for a year or two, to include among its printed credits gifts which some of the older and abler communities were making to their local colleges.

Within the more needy field so specifically committed to it, the Board has, from the first, aimed at two classes of results: The early supply of Christian education to the youth already waiting to receive it, and the solid establishment of institutions that may continue the supply to all future generations. These two aims have never been separated. No school has been opened that was not thought to have the prospect of permanence and ultimate strength.

In order to such prospect, two conditions have been held to be indispensable: The right location, and an outlook to an adequate property. Of the property, one very important element (namely, the land) has been, in most cases, comparatively easy to secure. Indeed, the abundance of land within the Board's special field, and the obvious local motives for offering it, have created one of the Board's chief duties—of deciding what offers to approve, and what to discourage. The decision has turned chiefly upon two things: The formal advisory action of the presbytery or synod within whose limits the offered site might fall; and the readiness of the offering community to add to its gift of land, at least a chief part of the cost of a competent building. The places that met these conditions were likely to approve themselves to the judgment of the Board, in which case they seemed promise of its aid. The beginning of a school or college being thus made, any movement toward the establishment of a competing institution, by whatever offers accompanied, has been discouraged. In several cases, such competing offers have been so large that they would have moved the Board from anything less than a clear purpose resting on principle. Much more frequently, however, the propositions made to it have lacked all promise of needful pecuniary strength. Accordingly, no feature of the Board's work has been more marked or more constant than its effectual repression of local undertakings which it saw to be either needless or hopeless, and, therefore, without claim to the Presbyterian help which they would be sure to demand. The sum which, during these seven years, has been given by churches and individuals to the Board's work, can be reckoned exactly. But the sum of the saving which the Board has effected, both for churches and for individuals, by preventing seven campaigns of very earnest and persuasive, but wasteful, canvassing for abortive schools, cannot be reckoned.

Consideration should also be given to the practical value of those decisions of the Board under which the preferred offers have been seized and put to use. By such decisions, mere proposals, which would have melted into air, have been turned into valuable properties, whose honorable destiny is now proclaimed by their fine buildings and growing trees. Meanwhile the rapid changes that have gone on about them have made it impossible to duplicate, except at great cost, if at all, the choice grounds that have thus come to our Church by gift.

But local provision thus made for property has gone but a short way toward establishing a school. The Board has had to cope with a list of remaining necessities.

2. Points of Difficulty.

The very provision of property has in many cases been so incomplete that new expense has immediately grown up on that account. This statement is carefully kept from being universal. A majority of the older institutions are out of debt. Some of the new ones have effectually avoided it, contenting themselves with such properties as they could produce, or waiting for enlargement till the necessary means were secured. But that has not been the rule. of the larger properties, especially, have come into being so complete and so completely provided for that they have not been encumbered to some degree. This is not to be wondered at. The most careful board of trustees seldom builds a church without some overrunning of estimates, even if there be no shrinkage in subscriptions. There was no probability that this new College Board, however thoughtful, could so advise the several boards of trustees that the building ventures of even the half of them could be sure to end with balanced books. (What it believes itself to have learned on this important point will be set forth hereafter.) Thus, from the first, the Board has had to deal with debts and interest.

Its direct and constant work, however, has been to contribnte to the support of the schools, and especially to the salaries of their teachers. Though their salaries have, for the most part, been very small, such income from tuition fees as could be commanded in schools newly opened in new communities has been quite insufficient for meeting them. Just at that point, according to the theory, the Board was to come in with its yearly appropriation, which, together with friendly local subscriptions, was to square the year's account. In very few cases was the theory met by the fact. The new Board's income was so far short of the aggregate demand made upon it, that with many of the new schools especially, the year almost certainly ended with a deficit. In some cases the zealous and liberal teachers surrendered the balance which could not be paid. The Church should have some just idea of the spirit of Christian self-sacrifice which has consecrated not a few of the spots whose names are read on the Board's unsentimental roll of colleges and academies. Many a youth who, by and by, will be doing heroic service for Christ in some home or foreign mission field will have formed his character upon the model of the teacher whom, during some of these past seven years, he has been watching in some scantily-helped institution of the "Presbyterian Board of Aid."

Other teachers have been unable to make surrender of their promised salaries; against which, indeed, in many cases, loans had been made, which the delayed salaries gave the only hope of paying. Accordingly, so much new debt has grown up against the young institution. Very commendable zeal has often been shown by the local trustees in clearing up these debts by special subscriptions of themselves and others. In a few cases there has been salable property, the proceeds of which could be turned to the same purpose. But some painful instances remain in which the bald debt lasts on, leaving the teacher still in need, while his just claim grows by yearly interest. The Board, while fully aware of these evils, has had its little income more than absorbed by every new year's demands for current work, and has not been at liberty to refuse its new appropriations in order to supplement its former ones, however insufficient they may prove to have been. At this difficult point, also, the Board believes that it has gained some light to which it will by and by ask attention.

But there has been a special reason why this deficit of unpaid salaries has been hard to control. Very naturally, every separate board of trustees has had its own judgment of the scale upon which its own school work should be attempted; and such as have found themselves beside flourishing State institutions have counted some generosity in outlay the only way to a remunerative attendance. Such motive to premature expense has been very strong, and the Board has not stopped at general remonstrance against it. In one case aid was definitely withdrawn, and the reason was explained to be a schedule of expenses that was held to be excessive. In several others, distinct warning was given against that kind of mistake, and not without effect. Yet instances remained in which the engagements of the trustees so far exceeded their ability of performance that the yearly addition of debt was very considerable.

There have been two ways in which these debts, whether on property account or on account of current work, have embarrassed the Board and limited its success.

- 1. They have lessened materially the serviceableness of those contributions which the Church has yearly been making to the teaching work. The Board, for good reason as it believes, has wished that all the collections of the churches and all ordinary gifts to its treasury should go, neither to the creation of property, nor to any property interest, but to the maintenance of that living work of Christian teachers on the minds and hearts of their pupils, for the immediate spiritual success of which every contributor can pray as naturally and as hopefully as though his contribution were made to the Home Board or the Foreign. When, therefore, a considerable part of the means thus received has been needed by the recipient boards of trustees for the payment of interest, not only has so much money gone aside to a separate end; the end which it ought to have served has been, to that degree, thwarted. For every dollar paid out as interest money has been a dollar out of some teacher's pocket. Even if the particular institution that paid the interest paid its own teachers in full, the money which it took from the Board on interest account was so much taken from the general supply, which at the best was too small for its legitimate office of supporting school work.
- 2. This payment of interest, therefore, has been steadily creating new debt, namely, in those unpaid claims of teachers which were growing up while the sterner claim of a note or a mortgage was asserting its precedence. Meanwhile, in many cases, yearly interest has no more been paid than the yearly salaries; and in those cases, crisis has come, in which the Board has been required to do its most anxious and difficult work—of securing personal benefactions, of large amount, for the rescue of the endangered properties. In some cases, such crisis has been reached under the pressure of property debts only.

3. Offsets.

These sombre details are not given without a reason. But they are to be offset by such facts as these:

The trustees that have been liberal in their estimate of yearly outlay have, in most cases, only been carrying out a scheme of liberality which they have personally put to practice, first in producing their college property and afterward in co-operating for saving it.

The rate of outlay which has proved beyond their means has generally been moderate enough when compared with the teaching ability on which it has been expended, and with the outlay of other institutions of like grade. In many instances indeed, it has been quite below the rate of remuneration which the same teachers were refusing in their zeal for building up the college of their own Church.

Every rescued property has been valuable enough to reward all effort and liberality expended in saving it.

In most cases the local outlay upon such property has been far greater than the total of contribution brought to it by means of the Board.

II. MEANS AND RESULTS.

Some knowledge of all the foregoing facts is necessary to any just comparison of the means which the Board has handled with the results that have been reached.

The Board's means, as has already been said, have been of two sorts: Money which it has received into its general treasury, and chiefly from church collections, to be expended in yearly appropriations on teaching work; and money which personal givers have committed to it, sometimes in large amounts, to be applied to the increase or relief of the school properties.

1. General Treasury and its Appropriations.

The giving to its general treasury was naturally moderate at first. But it increased with great regularity until the notable advance of the present year was made. The number of contributing churches has stood in the Board's successive years as follows: In its first, at 480; in its second, at 1330; in its third, at 1529; in its fourth, at 1761; in its fifth, at 1865; in its sixth, at 1902; in its seventh, at 2030.

From this general treasury the Board made distribution in its first year of $10,984, which it appropriated among nine institutions, as follows: Colleges: Park, Parsons, the Collegiate Department of the German Theological School at Dubuque, the Colleges of Emporia, Kansas, of Pierre, Dakota, and of Montana, at Deer Lodge; Academies or Collegiate Institutes: at Salt Lake City; at Princeton, Ky., and (Lenox) at Hopkinton, Iowa. Of these only the three colleges of Emporia, Pierre and Montana were new. The yearly distribution has increased as follows:

Distributed in the second year, $13,410.

| " | "   | third                  | 66 | 23,962. |
|---|-----|------------------------|----|---------|
| " | "   | fourth                 | "  | 23,243. |
| " | . " | $_{ m fifth}$          | "  | 25,847. |
| " | "   | $\operatorname{sixth}$ | "  | 27,945. |
| " | "   | seventh                | "  | 41,900. |

This last distribution is made to thirty-five institutions (see the following tables), of which twenty-seven are substantially new, since those that are not new in fact have begun the kind of work which entitles them to the Board's assistance either with or after the organization of the Board.

Of the large addition thus made to the roll of aided schools, by far the greater part dates from the Board's third and fourth years. In its third year its list numbered twentynine; and in its fourth year it was as large as it now is. There has been some variation of the list from year to year, but no substantial increase of it; and, for the most part, the same names have stood forth in every report. The Board has taken up very few institutions that have not proved their good claim to its continuous aid; and its policy has been to establish the institutions with which it has charged itself, rather than to increase its charge beyond the Church's readiness to provide for it. Of the names that have successively disappeared from its reports a very few, whose merit has not been questioned, have been thought to have no farther claim to the aid of the Church at large. But in several cases application for the Board's assistance has been voluntarily ended. Three institutions are omitted from this year's list because they have done no school work during the year. They are: Longmont College, Colo., Oakdale Seminary, Neb., and Groton Collegiate Institute, South Dak. The causes of their arrest of work are local and, in each case, may possibly give way. Accordingly these names are retained upon the map.

The payments stated below consist chiefly, as in former years, of amounts paid by the Board from its own treasury; but in part, also, of the gifts made by churches to special institutions, the Board giving credit to such churches as though their gifts had been put into its general fund.

This year, for the first time, as will be more fully set forth on a later page, all appropriations of the Board are paid in full. Actual final remittance has been made in all but two cases, in which it awaits delayed reports from the two institutions. Of the special receipts from legacies, which made such payment possible, a large part became available at the very close of the year. While the emergency which is hereafter explained has required this partial expenditure of legacies on the appropriations of the year, the Board believes that its current income ought to meet that whole demand of current work, and it will not make a precedent out of a necessity that has been forced upon it while its means and methods have been only developing. According to its theory, all moneys coming to it by will, even if not so restricted by the testator, should in prudence be reckoned with that class of personal gifts which is soon to be described, and should be applied where they can be traced in permanent advantage secured to the school properties, and where they can be guarded by lien.

2. Personal Givers and Property.

The means supplied by individuals for the relief or increase of school properties have been given in different ways: Sometimes directly to the institution, with the understanding, however, that the gift was to be reported to the Board, and to receive its acknowledgment. In the Board's first year gifts of this sort were reported to the amount of $13,603. In this last year similar gifts will be found herewith reported (see "Direct Donations") to the amount of $3,350. The total of this sort of giving for the seven years has been $116,738. Other gifts to special institutions have been made through the Board's treasury. Such giving began in the Board's second year, to the amount of $19,000. The actual payments of this kind that have been made this year aggregate $34,235.62. (For details, see Treasurer's statement, pp. 30-1). Other gifts of the same class are waiting for transmission till the legal papers necessary for the security of the investment are executed. The total of the Board's receipts for this purpose, from the beginning, has been $100,640.

For the confidence that has been shown it, both by contributing churches and by personal givers, it is deeply thankful. Of this latter class of helpers it should be said, that if God had not moved them to give, at critical junctures, their ready and, often, munificent help, all hearts would have failed over a hopeless task.

3. Present Statistics.

Some idea of the results that have been reached will be gained from the statistical tables here following. It must be borne in mind, however, that any material change in the list of aided institutions must make proportionate change in the tables and their footings. Thus, while the absence of the name of Park College, of Lenox, and of Carroll, indicates no arrest of these institutions' work, and therefore no loss of any outlay made by the Board upon them, the Board's show of totals is immediately lessened by the lack of their reports. That change leaves on the Board's roll but four colleges and four academies that may not properly be called new. The table, accordingly, comes to set forth chiefly the form and growth of the Board's creative work. A detailed comparison of the showings of this part of the tables, for the last year and for this, will discover proof of a general advance. Three particulars may be noticed:

The total of net property owned by same new institutions shows an increase of $20,409. A great part of this change has been made by the payment of debts. Some cases that are known to be provided for, would add to that increase $41,120. Fuller reference to this matter will be made on a later page.

The increase of attendance in the same institutions has been considerable, the new colleges alone reporting 111 more students than a year ago; namely, an increase of 13 in their college classes, and of 98 in their preparatory.

The new institutions that reported last year 63 probable candidates for the ministry, this year report 68.

One very interesting class of facts is not shown in the tables: These young colleges have three graduates who have completed their second year of theological study-two of them at McCormick Seminary, and one at Princeton. A fourth has been at McCormick one year; and a fifth, graduating this summer, expects to enter there in the fall. The two more advanced of the McCormick students are already preaching (during their vacation), one of them having charge of a number of mission churches in Nebraska, among which are two that were organized last year as a result of those labors of students of Hastings College, which were described in the letter of President Ringland, printed in the Board's last report. The foregoing, however, are only the beginnings of this class of results. One of the young colleges reports, as the "prospective ministers" in its lower classes: "'91, one (of two men and three ladies); '92, five (of eight men); '93, seven (of sixteen)." This statement (from Emporia College), is far beyond the average. Yet, what tendency the whole work has in that direction appears from the following letter, which concerns the newest school that has been organized under the Board. It is written under date of April 16, 1890, by Rev.

Dr. Henry S. Little, Synodical Superintendent of the Synod of Texas:

Dear Brother: Trinity Presbytery held its meeting at Glen Rose. We visited the institute formally, and were delighted with its management. Among the notable things was the fact that three young men were received under the care of the Presbytery, with a view of entering the ministry. (He speaks a good word for them, and adds): Their coming amply justifies the Presbytery in asking your aid. This fact alone is a return in full for all that the churches have done for education in Texas.

The blank spaces in following table are explained by the delay of the reports referred to on a former page.

III. FUTURE POLICY.

The Board believes that the Church will look upon this showing with the same feeling of encouragement with which it is made; and it believes, as well, that one chief element of that encouragement will be the suggestion that must have come to every interested reader, of a great improvement to be made upon the Board's past methods. Has it not reached a stage of strength at which the element of debt, however unmanageable at first, can be early eliminated from its work, and thenceforth effectually excluded? As a Board, indeed, it has never carried over a dollar of deficit to a new year. It is with great thankfulness that it ends this more difficult seventh year, like all the rest, with balanced books. But the foregoing pages show that it cannot present a similar balance on the books of all of its aided institutions. Yet it now sets out to prove, by recent notable advance toward that result, that it can be reached with little difficulty, and at an early day. If such a point can be gained, and held, the upbuilding of our Church's new academies and colleges will become a process as direct and sure as it is important.

1. PAYMENT OF ALL EXISTING DEBTS.

The facts which look to the clearing up of all existing debts are such as these: Leaving aside three institutions which have this year come upon the Board's list, the remaining 32 have, within the last two years, been carrying among them an aggregate indebtedness of nearly $250,000. Of this the larger part, by far, has been debt upon property. But the debts accumulated from unpaid current work have been very considerable. Of the gross amount just named, about $100,000 has, within two years, either been cleared off by payment actually made, or has been so provided for that the Board counts the early payment quite assured. Into that aggregate of payment will have been put, from means received by the Board from its personal helpers, a total of $51,000; the remainder, about one-half, will have been furnished to the several institutions by their own personal friends. Thus the total of debts on the 32 institutions now stands practically reduced to $150,000. But further movement is already making, looking less definitely but hopefully to the extinguishment of $50,000 of this remainder. The policy of the Board is to stimulate local self-help by the offer of conditional assistance from the "property fund" which individual contributors put at its disposal for that purpose. There is the best reason for believing that the success which is so largely attending that process will soon be complete. Not only is the entire remainder of debt small in comparison with the aggregate of property against which it stands; the burdens are so distributed that most of them are small, in fact; so that any judicious advice and help from the Board will be sure to inspirit the several communities for earnest effort in throwing them off. With a continuance of its recent current of receipts from personal sources, the Board confidently expects to see the whole list of its present schools free from debt within two years. The worth in money of the properties thus assured to our Church's educational work will, under conservative estimates, be likely to exceed considerably a million dollars. But their money value is no measure of their value to the Church. The able friends of this cause have every motive to aid in the early extinction of these remaining debts.

2. BALANCED CURRENT ACCOUNTS.

But the Board's best assurance that it will secure the clearing off of old debts lies in its hope, which it has this year substantially tested, of preventing the most insidious class of new ones—namely, those which result from unbalanced yearly accounts. Although the Board had given much attention to the fact that debt of that kind was yearly created by some of its aided institutions, the measure of the evil was not definitely known except under a new form of return by balance-sheet that had been provided for at the Board meeting of November, 1888. Such returns were first received in the fall of 1889, after the contracts for this school year of 1889–90 had been made. These balance-sheets of 1888–9 were soon followed by the applications of 1889–90, and the two sets of documents, when brought together, revealed the startling facts that for the year then past the outgoes of current work had exceeded corresponding income (the Board's appropriations included) by about $30,000; and that the year then begun would, under the estimates which the trustees had adopted and forwarded, substantially duplicate that history. If such an evil was to be arrested, it was necessary both to diminish, as far as the interests of the schools would allow, the schedules of current expenses, and to increase the schedules of assured income. If any such increase could be made as would provide with certainty for all the expenses, including teachers' salaries as already contracted for, of course the problem would be solved. But the Board saw no way of so suddenly ensuring that result. It did see a way, however, to such a considerable increase of the incomes then in sight as would warrant it in frankly putting before the teachers the alarming facts which it had discovered, and in asking them, for the sake of the advantage which an arrest of this debt-making would bring to their schools and also to themselves, to unite with the trustees in arranging for this year as the teachers who manage schools for themselves do always-namely, to take the whole income of the year as specially increased; to see the other expenses all paid, and to pay themselves out of the remainder. Of course the first condition to the success of such a scheme would be the demonstration of so much addition to income that the teachers could afford to surrender their contracts and trust the receipts. Toward that necessity the Board proposed to contribute such increase in its appropriations as would pledge an aggregate addition of $9,765 (and if its income would allow, of $13,955) to the aid dealt to its institutions in the former year. It expected, moreover, to stimulate very generous subscriptions from the local friends of the several schools. The teachers were to have all those additions before them and to judge of their sufficiency before they should accept the plan. Accordingly the scheme contemplated a free conference between trustees and teachers, in a sort of temporary joint-trusteeship, in which the year's new schedules of expenses and income should be agreed upon.

Such proposal was made to the trustees and teachers of the thirty-seven applying institutions. The results have been these: Thirty-five of the thirty-seven consented to the arrangement, and made formal signature of the Board's paper. One declined the proposal of squared accounts as impossible in its case, and afterward withdrew its application. Another saw reason, of which the proposal was set forth as part, for withdrawing itself from the Board's list of aided institutions. Inasmuch as three of the thirty-five are newly come upon the Board's list, no comparison of year with year can be made in their case. Two others were not aided in 1888–9. Concerning the remaining thirty the following facts appear:

- 1. Under the joint review of trustees and teachers the estimated current expenses, other than for payment of teachers, were changed from $135,685 to $126,512—a reduction of $9,173.
- 2. The total of expected income (apart from that to be supplied by the Board) was raised from $73,947, as estimated in the applications, to $87,413, as presented in the schedules revised by trustees and teachers under the Board's proposal and offers—an increase of $13,466.
- 3. The Board has paid over to the thirty-five institutions, according to its largest intimation, $41,900,—$13,955 more than it paid the year before.
- 4. Teachers' receipts for the two years, in the thirty schools, will stand as follows: In 1888-9, 148 teachers and 5 tutors had claims to salaries aggregating $91,191. Actual payment for the year reached only to $77,651. In paying that amount the trustees borrowed or sunk of school property, $7,579; and still they left 44 teachers and 2 tutors unpaid in the aggregate sum of $13,540.

In 1889-90, assuming that subscriptions of the most trust-worthy sort will be paid, 143 teachers and 8 tutors will receive the total of their claims as they themselves have stated them. They amount to $97,183—$5,992 more than the nominal salaries of the preceding year, $19,532 more than the teachers received in that year, and $27,111 more than they could have received if the trustees had not either borrowed money or sunk good property. This increase comes this year with balanced books.

But for the fact that one of the three institutions which the Board has this year newly taken up comes to it with a debt previously incurred, additional debt of no kind enters into the history of the seventh year of the Board of Aid.

- 5. Apart from the arrangement above described, the year would not probably have ended without adding $30,000 to the existing debts of the aided institutions; which means, that if the Board had been able to effect, during the year, the removal, say, of $60,000 of debt, it would have been allowing the full half of it to come back as new debt, for whose subsequent removal, the Board, that is, the Church's benevolence, would be required again to provide.
- 6. But this movement for the prevention of evil is doing positive good. The hopeful effort which several communities have made to balance the accounts of their schools, even for a single year, has put new tone into their whole school work. There is proof that over and above every gift referred to in the foregoing recital, some of the Board's assisted schools are this year gainers to the amount of many thousands in the assured increase of their property, under that very spirit of courage and purpose that has proved itself able to end one year with balanced books.

Such a recital shows, on its face, some things that cannot be incorporated into a standing method. Very plainly, the Board's yearly financial arrangements are to be made with trustees, and not at all with their teachers. Such measure of its aid as the Board thought necessary in order to persuade to the balancing of a year's work already contracted for, was probably larger than it would dare to pledge to trustees as basis of their new contracts. And it is further doubtful whether the measure of local helpfulness that was shown by individuals especially, can be counted upon year by year. But there are elements of income that can be counted upon. The yield of endowment, where any is had, is constant. Tuition and other fees have constancy sufficient to be prudently estimated. So long as need exists of resort to local aid from individuals or churches, a school that really deserves favor can enlist some measure of such aid with constancy enough to warrant an average expectancy. If, then, in addition to these items, the Board shall henceforth inform the several institutions, at the end of each scholastic year, what aid they may severally expect for the scholastic year following, it may properly leave with the boards of trustees the responsibility of so arranging their contracts that the balance between outgoes and income shall be assured. To this end, the Board should promise to pay its entire appropriation, and not a percentage of it; with the understanding, however, that, in order to receive payment of the first half of it, the trustees should present to the Board such an itemized schedule of contemplated income and outgoes as would show that the Board's promised aid would effect the desired balance between the two; and that, in order to receive the last half, they should afterward present, certified by vote of the trustees, at their annual meeting at the close of the scholastic year, an itemized balance sheet, showing that, with the exception of such outstanding bills as the Board's final payment would be sufficient to meet, all bills of the year had actually been paid, and accompanied with the trustees' pledge that the remaining bills should be paid so soon as the expected remittance of the Board should be received. The question whether or not an arrangement so rigid would carry with it discouragement to the institutions and hardship to their teachers, is simply the question whether or not the Church will put the Board in funds for developing the schools which she shall know to be economically managed. It is believed that she will, and that, with such a system understood, the Board's appropriations will rapidly grow large enough to meet their theoretic purpose—of bridging over the interval between the founding of a solid institution and its complete establishment with means of self-support.

3. No Debt on New Properties.

If any such provision can be made against deficit in current accounts, should it not be supplemented with some provision against the creation of debts for property? Will it be wise to stop small leaks and to pay no regard to large ones? The Board, without claiming to have reached any unchangeable conclusion on this grave matter, believes that, from this time forward, it should be able to do for any new school properties which are to come upon its list, just what the Board of Church Erection does for church properties. should encourage such local foresight and liberality as truly deserve its co-operation, by giving help enough to allow their school work to start in a property that is paid for. Not a dollar of income, received through this Board, ought to go to the paying of interest. The school work needs the whole of it, and the Church should be sure that it gets the whole. The property so paid for might be modest in all particulars except in the location and the proportions of its site. In those matters there should be no defect. The proper and ample site being owned without incumbrance, the building could be provided by degrees, enough of a well-planned whole being finished at first to meet the present need. It is toward that completed part that the Board should be able, if necessary, to contribute, taking a lien to the amount of its contribution. And if, in order to command a position truly valuable, it should be necessary to erect a building nearer the measure of its future needs than the unaided community could hope to provide for, this Board should be able to supply the substantial assistance that would complete the arrangement. Very grave thought should be given to the fact that the West is at a stage of its development when real prudence, backed by moderate available means, can be little less than a creator of our Church's future wealth. Such prudence, refusing to be tempted into any outlay upon land which it does not need, or to accept the land which it does need, until local means and zeal are pledged to liberal help in putting it to use, can grasp, at the right moment, the opportunity which would never come back. Only for a while will such opportunities last in any given town; for, in this matter, a young town is like a young tree; there is a right time for inoculating it. A tithe of the foresight by which the Church of Rome possesses herself of choice sites wherever she wants them, would keep this Board in funds for meeting a class of movements which are now made toward our Church, even with eagerness; but which the next generation of Presbyterian college-makers will recite with lasting gratification or regret. Whatever beginning of property be thus made, the Board should be able, on the one hand, to prevent all premature attempt at enlargement, by providing that the incurring of any debt will preclude appropriation; and, on the other hand, to encourage enlargement when necessary, and to make it safe, by adding to the local subscriptions the needed supplement of its own means. Every additional investment should be secured by additional lien.

The rule thus proposed would embrace only new institutions. If any school or college that has hitherto been doing its independent work should find itself in emergency that would require the aid of the Board, such case could be judged of by itself. But the Board's experience makes it exceedingly unwilling to encourage any new undertaking that cannot from the outset go on with squared accounts.

It is easy to foresee strenuous objections to this policy. Every eager new community will be sure that the early rise of value in real estate will enable their trustees to sell lots enough to meet the mortgage that has been left on their fine new building. There will be fears felt that to delay the opening of a proposed school till its property is paid for will allow some other denomination to get possession of the field. And it will be thought that the proper responsibility and independence of trustees will be overridden by an arrangement which prevents them from contracting a debt which they judge to be unavoidable. But the Board is charged with its correlate responsibility of soliciting and disbursing the trust-moneys which the Church's institutions expect to receive. On no other ground has it warrant for attempting to shape, in any particular, the policy of any board of trustees. Nor has it any choice or theory to urge in this regard apart from what it believes to be the mind of those who supply its means. Yet, after carefully weighing the question in all its aspects, it is persuaded that when exclusion of debt from the start shall be understood to be the Church's rule for all new institutions, this whole work will take on a reputation for solid advance which will more than compensate for any incidental evils of restriction or delay. Only let a proper proportion of our Church's wealth be put at the disposal of a Board which at all represents our Church's caution and steadiness, and as many schools of every grade as the Church will ever develop and endow can be begun and carried on without debt.

4. Current Investments to be Secured.

And to these proposed features of the Board's future policy another should, in prudence, be added. Cases may occur of academies or colleges beginning work, and therefore beginning to receive Board aid, without having had need of Board investment in their property. They will therefore have given the Church no security by lien that the teaching work into which she puts her current aid will be maintained. It should be understood that maintenance of current aid is to give the Church some hold upon the property of the school which that aid is yearly developing. It is evident, indeed, that for a part of that current aid the Church is immediately getting her fair return in the profit of the youth that are taught. But, at the beginning of work especially, such return is so small as to be only a part of the consideration for which the Church makes her yearly payments of appropriation. The contemplated quid pro quo lies largely in the expected future of the school; and, to that degree, the yearly appropriation is nothing else than investment, which the aided school should be legally bound to return out of the proceeds of its property before it has power to turn the property to any other use. Still, inasmuch as every community that produces a property for a Presbyterian school itself shows large faith in the success of its undertaking, it would become the Board to meet faith with faith, and not to demand any security for its earliest aid. But if a year's experience under the Board's assistance encourages the trustees to maintain their undertaking, they should be willing thenceforward to give the assisting Church a legal interest in their property to the amount of at least the half of the assistance rendered.

IV. THE OUTLOOK.

1. The New Starting-Point.

Of course, all these additions to the security of the Board's work of investment are meant to encourage an increase of the volume of its means. Like many another builder, it has been compelled to do some pile-driving and some pumping and grouting, down in the depths where its foundations are laid. But it counts its great building to be up now to the water-table, and henceforth expects to put all expense into the shapely, solid structure. Such growth will be visible, and it is expected to find supporters. No former year has compared with this in the amount of means put into our hands. To that increase of Church collections that has been noticed on a former page, is to be added the larger increase received from personal gifts and from legacies. These forms of income all combined, our treasury which in our first year received less than $15,000 this year reports nearly $100,000. Our second week of years thus starts from a point quite different from the zero of seven years ago.

And larger than this difference in mere finances is the difference of regard by which the Church now looks upon a living cause which she has identified with her largest purposes for the nation and the world. Already is it clearly seen and it is to be seen more clearly year by year - that that work of education by Christian institutions to which the evangelical Churches of our country have committed themselves is to have a reach far wider than its effects on its immediate pupils. The numbers directly taught in denominational schools and colleges will always be small in comparison with the numbers that receive education from the State. Hence the immense importance of the question, What can be done for keeping the influence of the State school from becoming unfriendly to the Christian religion? Any hopeful answer must point, not only to Christian schools and their alumni, but to the whole practical outcome of their work. That outcome will include particulars like these: A demonstration, in the sight of all interested parents, of the comparative moral and religious influence of distinctively Christian education; the production, in every region, of a good proportion of Christian scholars who will do their share of the teaching work of the next generation; the maintenance of a perpetual reminder to the secular schools that the eye of the Christian part of their community is kept upon the demeanor of their teachers toward the fundamental Christian facts. In proportion as the Christian schools gain in means and reputation, these effects may be expected to grow till, by such manifest influences as God's Spirit and providence have attached to Christian truth and Christian people, there shall be developed a pervasive power of restraint under which infidel teaching in the public schools shall be impossible. Directly to that end is tending all that interest in Christian education, which, advancing with our Christian people into every newest region, forms a part of the common thought of pioneer congregations, presbyteries and synods; which, encouraged and aided by this Board, produces in good time some beginning of the kind of school which it means to employ, and which resolves, with good hope, to carry on that beginning to its ideal completion. In a word, there is to be an immense education of our forming communities on this great matter. Good beginning of it is already made; but to carry it on, this Board of the great contributing Church must be the teacher. The lesson will not be complete till there shall stand forth, in just distribution, academies and colleges so furnished in buildings, equipment and endowment that they can set some such standard of true education at the West as even Princeton and Lawrenceville do at the East

2. Reasonable Expectations.

Such results will not come at once. But Presbyterian piety is to control wealth enough for producing them; and her motive to employ it is to grow by every new sign of sound advance toward the magnificent result. The foundations are now in sight on which generations of the future givers of the West, with their cohorts of thankful alumni, are to rear such increase as a score or two of years have been building up in New Jersey. For insuring to our Church and nation a complete provision of Christian schools with their best results, this Board has full confidence, under God, in the following rules:

1. Plant them only where they are needed.

2. Support them, not lavishly, but adequately, from the start.

- 3. Keep trustees, teachers, Board, and the whole contributing Church assured that there is to be no waste and discouragement by debt.
- 4. Secure every investment of Church means by lien held by the Church's Board.
- 5. Concentrate upon this movement the giving of the entire Church, to the rejection of all appeals from schools or communities that evade these reasonable terms.

The past seven years have left no room for doubting the success of such a policy. The steady increase of the Church's interest in this cause, and especially the increase of those personal benefactions from which it must receive its chief supply, pledges for it such a growing record as shall befit this momentous and unreturning epoch in American things. What an executor writes concerning the giver of a recent unexpected legacy of $5,000 will be said, in effect, of many more: "She found her thoughts turning to the destitute regions of the West and South." Mrs. McCormick's act of relieving and establishing Hastings College by her gift of $15,000 will be so approved by its manifest results that it will find many imitators. And Mr. Thaw's munificent legacy of $50,000 is to stand as such an attestation of a sagacious man's sympathy and confidence as might well have encouraged our hopes, even if we had been near to despair. But our hopes have been constantly encouraged; and this succession of great and hearty benefactions coming within a single year brings, not relief, but inspiration.

The term of service of the following members expires with this meeting of the Assembly, namely:

Ministers—Rev. Wm. H. Roberts, D. D., Rev. S. J. Niccolls, D. D., Rev. J. H. Worcester, Jr., D. D., Rev. Robert Christie, D. D.

Laymen—John S. McDonald, W. O. Hughart, Henry W. Johnson, Dexter A. Knowlton.

And one minister is to be elected to take the place of Rev. Dr. John F. Kendall, deceased.

Respectfully submitted by order of the Board.

H. D. GANSE,

Corresponding Secretary.

Board's Room, 23 Montauk Block. CHICAGO, ILL., May 6, 1890.

TREASURER'S STATEMENT OF CASH RECEIPTS.

1. From Churches and Sabbath Schools.

Note.—When the name of any church stands in the following list in italics, it will be understood that such church has made a direct donation to one or another of the institutions of the Board. The amounts so given could not be stated among the receipts of the Treasurer of the Board. They will all be found in the "Detailed Statement of Church Collections Sent Direct to Institutions," on page 62. It will be seen that in some instances churches have made double donations; both to the Board's treasury and to particular institutions. Credit for each will be found in its respective place.

Secretary.
